He Zhang	Shenzhen Foreign Languages School(Group)	Beginning Writer	Listening is Easy! Monologue vs. Monotony That's Why I Gave Up on Research	Champion	He Zhang, great job with your stories. You are adept at the audience into your worldview. In the 'Listening is Easy!' story, the reader can follow your frustration. It sounded like a difficult situation to be in. The story did a good job of describing the environment that you were in, and the struggles you faced. Throughout your stories, you keep the audience engaged. I enjoyed your experimentation with format. I would suggest you start to branch out from telling your own stories, and tell stories about those in your community. You can still cover the same ideas, but get perspective from others and provide more facts about what you are reporting on. Overall,
Wansu Ma	RDFZ XISHAN SCHOOL	Beginning Writer	Those Unknown Ones	Second Place	Wansu Ma, good job on your story! You really encapsulated the complications that come with adolescent friendships. The emotions throughout the story add to it. Isolation and apathy is prevalent in younger generations and it's good to bring awareness to this. A suggestion I would have is getting more facts and interviews into your story to add additional context and verification
Yang Liu	Irvine University High School	Climate and Environment Writing	Eaton Fire: One Year Later	Champion	Yang Liu, this story was short, punchy and included 3 different interviews - amazing! Interviews are the main driver of solid news coverage. Reaching out to different sources and framing the story through their experiences is a major element of journalism. I liked the included images. One suggestion would be formatting, typically quotes go in their own paragraph with attribution and paragraphs are much shorter.

Jiachun Qian	United World College Of Changshu China	Climate and Environment Writing	Tragedies Left Alone: Inside China's Cetacean Captivity Industry	Second Place	Jiachun Qian, this was a very interesting story to tell. Its a specific look at a niche part of the topic area. I appreciated that you had quotes in your story. My advice is to move the quotes higher up and use them more to tell the story. Also, getting more than one interview is helpful.
Yuen Yi Li	Vanke School Pudong	Climate and Environment Writing	Resilient Cities Building a Future on Shifting Ground	Third Place	Yuen Yi Li, I appreciate the comparative look of urban Chinese cities and the place and how they fit into the world. You have a lot of solid research here. I would suggest next time talking to experts in the field and interweave quotes with your research

Jinzhen Qian	Malvern College	Editorial Writing	Factors behind Sexual Assault on Women in India	Second Place	Well thought out story. For an editorial, I would recommend having a strong opinion throughout.
Yi Di Mi	Shanghai Starriver Bilingual School	Feature Writing	Sales On The Street Edges of Shanghai	Champion	The integration of photos and text is well done. I like how you used time stamps to guide the reader on the first page before the story resumes a standard format. I would also warn against using too many different fonts - stick to one or two clear and easy to read fonts. I love this line, "When the tip of the sun touches the surface of the river, he rolls his custom-built barbecue cart into the same spot he occupies most evenings." You did a great job writing an intriguing lede that draws the reader in. I also love the use of pull out quotes. This is a very important story and you did a
Wai Kiu Elise Sze	Chinese International School	Feature Writing	Threads of Belonging	Second Place	Incredibly well done. The lede is detail oriented and pulls the reader in. I would recommend adding a quote just a little higher up, preferably within the first four paragraphs, to really help emotionally connect readers to your subject. You did a great job layering facts with observation and narrative details. You tackled a very important subject, so it's great that you had more than one
Ziheng Tian	Shanghai Starriver Bilingual School	Feature Writing	Stitching Time: How Shui Horsetail Embroidery Struggles to Survive—and Transform	Third Place	Wonderfully written! The lede is very descriptive and draws the reader in, and facts are mixed in with emotionally driven details and humanizing quotes. I think you could cut "Stitching Time:" out of your headline, as it doesn't contribute much. Great job talking to more than one embroiderer — the photos are

Zixin Chen	Ulink College of Shanghai	Sports Column Writing	Are we really participating in flag football, or just playing the "token female" role for show?	Third Place	This talks on something I had no idea was even happening. I think you shed light on a clear problem with how flag football leagues view their equitability and equality clauses. I think one thing holding it back was that it had no formal interviews. Getting someone who has been affected by this would put it in another level of story.

Jiayu Cui	Xi'an Gaoxin No.1 High School	Informational Graphic	How Game Systems Compete for 16 Miliseconds in Unity	Commendation
Shicheng Ma	Foothill High School	News Magazine Front Page Design	Plastic Jellyfish	Champion	The jellyfish illustration is very impressive. It is very clever with the choices in the drawing including trash in the main jellyfish and in the background. There is a small typo in the copy, but the overall typography design is well done. I appreciate the font choices.

Ningjing Qian	ShengHua Zizhu Academy	News Magazine Front Page Design	Roots of Resilience	Second Place	The illustration is very impressive and a good representation of the topic area. Mental health is a good, relevant topic. I like the typography for the title, but the right aligned text is a little all over the place.
Jimeng Qin	Chongqing Yucai Secondary School	News Magazine Front Page Design	Neural Decoding	Third Place	The concept is good, and various portions of it are impressive designwise, but the overall heirarchy is hard to follow. 'Cover Statement' draws your eye in first, but that isn't the real headline. If you did it again, I would suggest you remove the floating text in the top of the page and focus on the bottom portion more.

Shulang Cao	Beijing No.35 High School	Documentary Video	Abacus and Youth: When Mathematics Meets Huangshan Intangible Cultural Heritage	Champion	This is professional quality work beyond your years. The shots are incredible, it's edited together very well. You cut to the action at the right times, and the basics camera movements are done wonderfully. I do notice certain imperfections toward the ends of clips where the camera slightly shakes, but it's only noticeable on subsequent watches. I never thought I could care about an abacus to this degree.

Yilin Wang	Beijing National Day School	Documentary Video	Guard Haba	Second Place	There is a great filmic look with an incredible variety of scenes featuring nature and our guide. Beautiful shots of the mountains and incredible B-Roll. It not only looks nice, but we get a story from start to finish. The shots cut off nicely and the music is fitting and well-designed. There is never a dull moment and it does not suffer from any dead air spots.
